

Artist Statement

Wolfgang Brenner

The visual arts, but also art, in general, serves exchange and communication among each other. In my opinion, contemporary art should not only be determined by the world of beauty and being. Lust, suffering should be visible to the outside world, and knowledge should play an important role. "Know yourself, recognize the right moment." But the visual arts can do little or even change little.

But the artist can become a "sting in the flesh of society." It should show grievances in social and political terms and thus work towards changes. This includes my concept of how I can point out the environment, nature, and peace policy.
